

Crowd Energy is the collective effort of individuals or profit or non-profit organisations, pooling their resources through online ICT applications to build a sustainable energy system, consisting of virtually or real-local grouped intelligent Generation-Storage-Load (iGSL) Cells. This implies

- decentralisation in production and storage,
- smart and efficient energy use,
- but also a substantial change in society, economy and politics.

